FRANKLIN OUTDONE. - Ben Franklin once

"He who by the plough would thrive, Himself must either hold or drive." These lines were very popular in their day, and even now they are occasionally quoted by old fogies. But some person has eclipsed them by bringing out the following : "He who by his biz would rise, Must either bust or advertise."

"AND THERE SHALL BE SIGNS IN THOSE Days!"-Mr. C. Werner, the Tubal Cain of this section of the globe, has just completed one of his marvellous combinations of iron that delight the good citizens of Charleston, in the shape of signs. That placed in position yesterday over Messrs. Cameron & Barkley's new store is a masterpiece of the ironworker's art. A gilded saw is hung from a framework of iron that supports an anvil, from which rises a snake, who holds upon one of his crests a cushion, star and hammer. The workmanship is perfect, and the general remark was, whoever saw such a sign?

CRUMBS .- Mr. James P. Hughes, an old resident of Charleston, died suddenly on Monday last from disease of the heart. The Fenians of this city will meet to-morrew evening to discuss business of importance. A saloon-keeper of this city has been arrested for an alleged violation of the Civil Rights bill. An encounter took place on Monday evening on thoughts intent, in which one of warriors matched his stick against his opponent's pistol. They were separated before any damage was done.

Salnave's officers, with big names and bigger titles, lay over in Wilmington on Saturday night.
There was a very fair house at the Augusta Theatre on the occasion of Manager Ford's benefit. Mr. O'Neil, (Claude Melnotte,) Miss Eldridge, (Pauline,) and Ella Chapman, (Jenny Lind,) are warmly praised by the Augusta papers.

The Vigilant Fire Engine Company celebrated their anniversary yesterday.

LAST DAY IN CHARLESTON. -The citizens of Charleston have patronized more than liberally the panorama of New York City at Hibernian Hall. It exhibits to-day at 3, and to-night at 8 o'clock for the last time here. Our brethren of the press of other cities do not hesitate to extend to it their most willing favors. A visitor to this work of art says: "Millionaires lolling in easy carriages; upper ten ladies promenading aristo cratic avenues; 'fast men riding fast horses; lean dandies languishing on heavy canes; butcher boys in trucks bandying compliments with side walk loafers; sturdy beggars jestling feeble apple women; newsboys running afoul of blind cripples; Bowery b'hoys out a larking with stalwart g'hals: beggars and princes; Jews and Gentiles; authors in rags and cut throats in broadcloth; editors and vagabonds; children, dogs and monkeys-in short, 'New York as it is,' by the hand of a master who has not sacrified truth to delicacy, and who was not too fastidious to be just.

Yet there is nothing coarse or indelicate in this exhibition. The different figures on the canvass are said to be actual transcripts of persons on the streets at the time the drawings were made. It is indeed a painting of extraordinary merit and fidelity. One will be astonished to learn that it cost four years of constant labor, and yet perhaps still more astonished that so much could have been executed by one man in a lifetime.

It should be seen by all; by those who have not visited the great city, to learn its mysteries; by those who have, to pay a visit to their old brickand-mortar friends."

Aisles, galleries, organ loft and vestry rooms were densely crowded with persons of all classes and all denominations, eager to show their respect for the good priest, whom so many had cause to reverence and love. 'TIS FORTY YEARS SINCE .- The following inthe Rural Carolinian by Dr. William T. Wragg, of this city, is of unusual interest and historical value as showing the origin of the discovery of sentially chic, and made a decided hit. the magnetic telegraph :

In 1831, and part of 1832, the writer, then studying in the schools of the world-renowned Paris, had his lodging in the modest upper chamber of the unpretending "Hotel de Calcutta," in the "Rue de Savoye," near the famous old "Pont Neuf," on the student's side of the Seine, in the "Pays Latin." At the same time there lived in the same hotel another young compatriot, also engaged in the prosecution of his studies. His calling led him into very different places from those frequented by the writer; but on Sundays and holidays a visit to the Louvre often found the latter standing, in wrapped admiration, before an immense canvas, reached by a stage eight or ten feet in height, upon which the former was daily engaged in copying the great picture of the "Shipwreck," which at that day graced, and perhaps still graces, the wall of the first room of the grand gallery of the Louvre. Time passed on, and, as the picture advanced to completion, and the artist grew in reputation, his friends augured most favorably for the future fame of an author whose first finished picture produced him (rumor said) the handsome sum of one thousand

In the summer of 1832, this artist was on his way home in one of the fine ships of the Havre the battery, between two individuals on hostile and New York line. Steam did not, in those days, town; L. W. Harkin and wife, New York; Thomas puff the traveller on his homeward putt. across Brown, Blackville; M. West, Midway: J. M. Gonde the grand Atlantic in seven or eight days, and adverse winds not infrequently protracted the voyage far beyond the endurance of impatient absentees, longing for home, for fame, and for fortune. The voyage, on this occasion, was un- P. Nelson, Kingstree; D. P. Logoman, Graham's isually long. The passengers had used every ordinary resource by which they might hope to Patha Island; D. J. Pipkin, Kingstree; J. J. Price, substract an hour or two from the tedious time. All had been employed, all had been exhausted, all had failed. At last a fellow-passenger, whose studies had also been going on in that grand old omnibus, Paris, and who, like the painter, was returning home with head and heart both filled, like his with hopes of greatness, and the means of achieving it, and whose career has been hardly less successful, brought on deek his scientific apparatus and proposed to lop off an hour or two from the tedious time by exhibiting experiments. Electricity and galvanism contributed their quota. In one of these experiments the effect produced was seen at a considerable distance from the instrument that was working. An Englishman, who was carelessly looking on, remarked, "What a P. Low, Columbia; Miss Ella Chapman, Baltimore; pity we can't send messages as quick as that."

This remark seemed to pass away like the flash that had occasioned it, for no farther reference was made to it, but it was a seed that had fallen on good ground, and in due time it sprung up and bore fruit million-fold.

Arrived at New York, the ennuye passenger separated. But nothing was heard of the ambitious painter, whose copy of the "Shipwreck" had spread his fame ahead of him.

The old ropewalk that stood on or near the spot on which the distributing reservoir of the Croton water now is, was hired by some un known person, who was engaged in some unknown experiments which did not seem to give much promise of useful result, since month after month and year after year passed by and still the mysterious workman was as dark and mysterious as ever, and his barred doors still defied the curiosity of the curious, till at last even the mystery itself ceased to attract notice. Ten years passed thus, and at the end of that time Morse emerged from his ropewalk with his TELEGRAPH accomplished, and electrified the world.

Arthur Bogdon, the Nestorian minister, in behalf and is fitted up in a superior manuer, the ceiling Ex parte Cleland K. Huger and A. F. Ravenel, being frescoed, and the gas fixtures of the mist tions were furnished, every seat was filled, and a prompt response to a charitable appeal. The lecturer depicted in glowing colors the struggles of the native Christians in Turkey, and how, notw thstanding the heel of the oppressor was on their necks, the sect had continued to preserve their religious individuality through the past ages. What perhaps added ar interest to the lecture, was the fact that the reverend speaker was from the birthplace of our Saviour, the village of Bethlehem, and was thoroughly familiar with the social habits of the peo ple he was describing. Mr. Withers, the accomplished leader of the or chestra, performed two of his inimitable solos or the violin during the evening that added greatly to the interest of the occasion. The course of lectures will be continued this evening, when Mr. Bogdon will give further descriptions of the land of Islam.

THE INFIRMITIES OF AGE. Decrepitude is the natural accompaniment of old age, but it may be ameliorated, and the period of entire helplessness long postponed by the judicious use of a healthful stimulant. Physicians fully aware of this fact, usually recommend moderate stimulation when the strength and vigor of maturity have been suspended by the feebleness and prostration which are the inevitable results of declining years. Port wine, gin, brandy and other liquors are often prescribed by medical men for aged persons, but the impulses which ferment ed and distilled liquors give to the circulation and the energy they seem to impart, is transitory, unless the alcoholic principle is modified and qualified by the presence of medical tonics and invigorants. Of all the combinations of diffosive stimuli with the mices of herbs, roots andbarks that have ever been administered to the aged and infirm, with the view of sustaining their waning strength, cheering their drooping spirits and relieving their aches and pains to which they are subjected, none has been found so efficacious. so agreeable and so permanent in its effects as-HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. The difference between the effect of the Bitters and that of mere excitant, however pure, is the same as between the effect of a sudden and momentary anplication of excessive force to a given purpose, and the result of a steady, continuous application of exactly the requiste amount of force to the same end. The mere spirit of physicial energy produced by a dram (and which is always suc ceeded by corresponding depression) never yet benefitted any man or woman suffering from physical decay. A cordial like l'ostetter's Biters, at once soothing and invigorating, is the remedial agent required. jan29 GD&C

DRATT'S "ASTRAL" OIL Unlike many other Illuminating Oils, is per fectly pure and free from all adulterations or mixtures of any kind. It emits no offensive smell while burning, gives a soft and brilliant light, and can be used with the same assurance of safety as gas. Chemists pronounce it the best and safest Illuminating Oil ever offered to the public; and Insurance Companies endorse and urge upon consumers the use of the "Astral" Oil in preference to any other. It is now burned by thousands of families, and in no instance has any accident occurred from its use; a lamp filled with it, if upset and broken, will not explode. To prevent adulteration, the "Astral" Oli is packed only in the Guaranty Patent Cans, of 1 gallon and 5 gallons each, and each can is sealed in a wanner that cannot be counterfelted.
